

ISMAY PLANNED HASTY FLIGHT

Chairman of Senate Committee Declares He Wanted Crew Spirited Off.

WIRELESS MESSAGES CAUGHT

That Accounts for Prompt Appearance of Committee in New York. Operator on Carpathia Declares He Did Not Send False News of Disaster.

United Press Telegram. NEW YORK, April 20.—The delay of more than 12 hours in getting news of the Titanic disaster ashore and the cruel reassuring messages which came through the White Star line on Monday were taken up by the Senate investigating committee today.

It became apparent during today's session that many of the survivors of the Titanic will be called. Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Colonel Archibald Gracie and relatives of all the prominent men who left their loved ones will probably be placed on the stand. Members of the committee today expressed their determination to have every "man, woman or child" testify who can tell anything about the disaster.

J. Bruce Ismay, Vice President, Franklin and manager of the Titanic, is ready to be subpoenaed and are kept under surveillance, by aides of Sergeant-at-Arms Ransom. They will undoubtedly be taken to Washington to testify.

Senator Smith said today that the need for immediate investigation was made apparent to the Government when the Federal wireless station heard of a scheme proposed by Ismay to hurry the surviving members of the Titanic crew out of New York, as well as himself.

J. Bruce Ismay sent messages by wireless to General Walter Franklin in which he urged that the outward bound Cedric be stopped to take the crew to England, said Smith. "These messages were picked up by the wireless operator on a government boat and relayed to Washington. That is why the investigation is being held so prompt in reaching New York and why I was down at the pier when the Carpathia put in."

"Not only was Ismay eager to return to England on the Cedric, but he has been eager to get away on the Cedric. We have heard of Mr. Ismay and he will remain here. We are going to ask him some more questions. The crew will also be held for a time."

Thomas O'Brien, the wireless operator on the Carpathia, was on the stand. Despite news of the disaster, he went at 10:30 Monday evening, according to O'Brien, who said that he rushed the details to the Baltic. The Carpathia was then out of touch with land.

None of these details, no word that a thousand or more had gone down with the Titanic reached the shore until Monday.

"I sent several messages to the Baltic," said O'Brien, "but I kept no record of them. There were many of them and I was too busy sending and receiving. At 10:30 Monday morning I sent all the details to the Baltic. It was the whole story. The Baltic was then coming toward the wreck."

"I was not in touch with the land stations. I told of the total loss of the Titanic and the rescue of those who had been picked up. I told them we were coming to New York."

Senator Smith tried to get a line on the reassuring news that was sent out. He asked:

"Did you send anything about Halifax?"

"I think that one of my early messages that we might take the survivors into Halifax. That was talked of at one time but later I said we were going into New York."

"I did not send from the Carpathia," continued O'Brien, "at any time after the disaster a report that the passengers and crew had been saved and that the Titanic was slowly coming in to port in tow. Nothing of that nature was either sent by me or suggested to me by any officer or passenger or anyone else. I sent nothing that could be construed to mean that and it would have been utterly false if I had sent out such words."

"If the White Star line sent the following message from New York on April 15 to Congressman Hughes of Philadelphia: 'The Titanic is proceeding to Halifax and the passengers will probably reach there Wednesday all safe.' If such a message was sent out, at any time would it have been true?" demanded Senator Smith.

"It would not," answered the operator emphatically.

Smith asked whether a message had been sent at any time that might have been construed as meaning that the passengers and crew of the Titanic were safe, but the operator insisted that no message from him could have been so interpreted.

"Did you in any way attempt to withhold the facts of the disaster?" was asked.

"I certainly did not," answered the operator.

"Did any message reach the Carpathia Monday which indicated that all were saved and that the Titanic was being towed to port?"

"No sir."

O'Brien declared that from Sunday night until the Carpathia reached New York Thursday night he got only eight or ten hours sleep. From the time of the disaster he worked continually until five o'clock Wednesday when Operator Blyle of the Titanic, who was among the survivors, relieved him for a few hours. Blyle said he received several messages from the scout cruiser Chester and sent several, including the list of three dead passengers saved.

O'Brien was more than emphatic in declaring that neither he nor Blyle nor anyone else on the Carpathia had at any time sent out any message that could be construed to mean that the Titanic was safe and that the wrecked vessel was proceeding to port either under its own steam or by tow.

"I never even heard of such a message until I got to New York," declared the operator.

Senator Smith was most anxious to know what had happened to the reassuring message to him after his arrival here by the operator could not remember. He said he did not think it was either Ismay or Captain Rostron of the Carpathia.

Blyle, the assistant operator on the Titanic, was called. He was carried into the room because of his feet being frozen. He told of what happened before the wreck. He explained how he had sent the call for help and the meaning of the call was explained. He said that some German ship asked him what was the matter. He told them and the German ship called him a "damn fool" and told the Titanic to "stand by." He related how he was saved.

CAPTAIN HADDOCK DECLARES HE SENT NO FALSE REPORT. PLAYMOUTH, Eng., April 20.—Captain Haddock of the Olympic denies that he sent out on Monday any message saying that the Titanic was being towed into port with the passengers and crew remaining aboard.

Survivors of the Titanic, After Their Harrowing Experience, Receive a Warm Greeting on Boat's Arrival in New York

NEW YORK, April 20.—Great interest was shown in the arrival of the Carpathia in New York with the 700 survivors of the Titanic. Police lines established two blocks from the pier where the boat docked kept curiosity seekers at a distance and the survivors were able to leave the pier and enter automobiles and carriages without encountering tremendous crowds. About 2,000 passes had been issued to friends and relatives of the survivors, but the Currier line plan is so large that there was plenty of room for them. A few of the passengers on the Carpathia who had started a week before for Mediterranean points decided not to continue on the interrupted journey and they came off with the Titanic survivors. All those on the boat had graphic stories to tell of the four days and three nights spent on board the Carpathia after the occupants of the Titanic's lifeboats were picked up off the Newfoundland banks. The Carpathia did not have accommodations for all the sufferers and many of them slept on the floor on dining room tables or in beds improvised in bath tubs. Captain Rostron of the Carpathia was almost a wreck from loss of sleep when his boat came into port. The Titanic's lifeboats were brought into the New York harbor by the Carpathia and were dropped into the North river.

CHIEF OF POLICE ASKED TO RESIGN

Chairman of Police Committee Asks Brother to Leave Force.

A STOCKHOLDER IN GARBAGE CO.

Connellman Maintains That George Hetzel Cannot Hold Both Positions. John Lowe is Elected Unanimously to Vacancy Caused by Resignation.

Chief of Police George Hetzel has been asked to resign. The request was made by his brother, Chairman E. U. Hetzel of the Police Committee. Chief Hetzel refuses to give up his job.

Chairman E. U. Hetzel then put the matter up to the Police Committee, which reached the conclusion that the Chief should hold his position. E. U. Hetzel asked the Chief to resign two weeks ago, when the Chief refused. The Chairman of the Police Committee believes that as Chief Hetzel is a member of the Connellsville Garbage & Fuel Company, he should not retain his position on the force.

Other committee members claimed that as long as the Chief has no duties to perform for the company, he has time to pursue his duties as chief of police. He was called on the telephone and the committee was told by the Chief that he would not have anything to do with the company outside of his interest as a stockholder. Orders were given to him that in case he was notified to have any place cleaned up he was to tell the Burgess, who was to notify the garbage company. Hetzel further promised that if he later in any way became actively interested in the garbage company he would resign.

John Lowe, formerly a policeman, was unanimously elected back on the force. His election took place on the first ballot. He was nominated by Brant. There were many other applications. He will be recommended to Council at its next meeting.

The policeman will sport new uniforms this summer. The new "duds" will be patterned after those of the Pittsburgh police force. They will be single breasted coats and will button close up to the collar. The coat will be short. Helmets will be used as heretofore. All the policemen are said to welcome the change.

Policemen were ordered to arrest persistent store front loafers. An order was given the force some time ago to make persons stand on the curb. The practice of policemen of congregating in groups of two and three will be eliminated, say the committee members. Officers will henceforth be ordered to abstain from the practice. Several complaints have been handed in on this account.

INDIAN CREEK COAL ENTERS MARKET

First Shipment to the Trade Made to Philadelphia Yesterday.

MORE EXPECTED TO FOLLOW

Rate Differences Have Practically Been Adjusted, Making It Possible to Get into the Eastern Field—First Consignment Is for Export Trade.

The first shipment of coal for the trade from the Indian Creek valley was made yesterday. Following the settling of the rate question, east of Indian Creek with the Baltimore & Ohio, regular shipments will be made. The mine opened belongs to W. D. Rogers. Coal has been taken out of it since the Indian Creek valley was first opened but none has been shipped for the trade. Coal has been supplied the engines of the Indian Creek Valley railroad and part of one car was shipped by J. K. Stauffer some time ago for the purpose of testing its cooking qualities.

The Superior Coal Company of Connellsville is handling the present coal shipments. The first car load went to Philadelphia, where it was shipped to a firm in England. The coal is from the Prospect vein.

This means the development of the trade in the Indian creek valley. The thousands of acres of coal that lie in the valley have not been developed because of insufficient transportation facilities. After the Indian Creek Valley railroad was built, the rate question came up caused a delay in arranging traffic sheets.

That question, with a few minor exceptions, has been settled.

The H. C. Holston Lumber Company was again named defendant in a suit for damages today when Attorney P. E. Younklin filed suit in behalf of Ira Snyder to recover $33.

DECKER DISCOVERS FIRE WHICH DESTROYS HOUSE

Connellman's Son Sees Smoke and Tells Father—House Almost Completely Destroyed.

Fire of unknown origin almost entirely destroyed the home of Merrill E. Oakes, No. 733 Franklin avenue last night. A strong wind aided the flames and the blaze had gained great headway by the time the firemen arrived. No one was in the house at the time. Oakes is a railroad car and was on the road while Mrs. Oakes had gone visiting. Before leaving a fire was left in an upstairs bedroom and it is thought that the fire caught from this.

Harold Decker, passing the house about 10:30 last night, saw smoke. He told his father, S. B. Decker, who lost no time in calling the fire department. The fire wagon had difficulty reaching the place. The house, a frame dwelling owned by John Franks, was insured. The household furniture was also insured.

RIVER TRACK ALLEVIATES B. & O. FREIGHT DIFFICULTIES

Henceforth, Trains Can Leave Main Line at Indian Creek and Come to Connellsville.

Actual work on the construction of the new track to be laid along the Youghiogheny river from the freight yards to Indian Creek will start in a few days. The material is on the ground and quick action is expected. The new track will be situated along the river bank all the way. The laying of the track will mean much toward the alleviation of traffic conditions at the local yards. When it is finished freight trains can leave the main line at Indian Creek and come to Connellsville the rest of the way by means of the new track. Freight trains have heretofore been held up at Indian Creek because there were passenger trains in the lock can proceed into the yards here on their own track.

ODOR PERMEATES TOWN. THOUGHT IT WAS FURNACE

Some One Burned Pile of Rubbish and People Think There is Accident at Garbage Plant.

Persons over town were last night appalled by the garbage company, so supposed neglect in applying the patent device for destroying odors. Throughout the evening the downtown section was permeated with an odor that reminded travelers of the famous smell at Red Bank.

The garbage company was blamed for the occurrence but officials claim that some industrious person bent on the spring house cleaning task had destroyed a quantity of old rubbish by burning. Health Officer E. Rottler this morning went on a tour of investigation.

CONCENTRATION IS NEWEST WATCHWORD

Likewise "30,000 in 1920" is Aim of Rejuvenated Organization.

FIRST MEETING LAST NIGHT

President Markell Names Men to Serve on Various Committees and Inspiring Talk is Delivered by C. C. Kirkpatrick of the Town Builders.

Quiet concentration and "30,000 in 1920" will be the keynote of the new Chamber of Commerce, as outlined by representative meeting of the members last night. There was no great outburst of enthusiasm and although but a small percentage of members was present it is felt by the officers that the organization will prosper. Preliminary steps in the mode of operation were discussed and C. C. Kirkpatrick of the Town Builders Company outlined plans followed in other towns and cities.

President F. E. Markell had been called out of town and E. T. Norton presided with E. W. Horner as secretary. Nothing has yet been accomplished in securing a secretary. E. W. Horner reported that the committees have been organized, the wives had an effort to locate the right man but that the committee had nothing to report.

One of the features of the reorganized chamber will be the Ways and Means Committee as outlined by Mr. Kirkpatrick last night. "The Ways and Means Committee will be composed of approximately 75 persons who will represent every interest. The grocers, hotel men and those in all other lines of trade will have their representative on the board. It was suggested by Mr. Kirkpatrick that each trade get together and elect their representative on the committee. All perplexing matters arising in any line of business will come before the Ways and Means Committee. Devoted to one common end it is thought that a common solution of problems can be effected this way."

The slogan "thirty thousand in 1920" was adopted. "Cities have characters as individuals," said Mr. Kirkpatrick. "Character is a composite of a town's citizenship and it is evolved by having men of foresight. Connellsville is as big as you want to make it."

Mr. Kirkpatrick continued at length to explain the workings of the Ways and Means Committee as used in other cities. He suggested that at the meeting of the committee a live secretary and specialist in his line be secured to address the body. He touched on civic patriotism and pointed to the fact that there are many young men in Connellsville anxious to do something for the city. He advised the chamber to secure a live secretary and then back him up in his work.

Following Mr. Kirkpatrick's speech addresses were made by J. Fred Kurtz, E. W. Horner, E. R. Floto, E. T. Norton, Robert Norris and Benjamin Goldsmith and J. C. Cogley. E. W. Horner sounded a warning note as to men who have been investigating their money in outside industry. He said that the place to invest money was at home.

E. R. Floto was applauded when he said Connellsville had advanced materially since he came here six years ago. E. R. Norton and stress on the fact that concentrated effort should be the watchword.

"Ten men with concentrated effort can make Connellsville a city of 30,000 population in 10 years instead of 15,000," he said.

"There's nothing Connellsville can't do for itself," spoke Robert Norris. Mr. V. Wright offered the suggestion that Connellsville people ought to "talk Connellsville" wherever they are. The committee as appointed by Mr. Markell and submitted to the Chamber were as follows:

Executive Committee, E. T. Norton, chairman, E. R. Floto, Worth Kilpatrick, J. R. Davidson, Robert Norris, F. W. Wright, John Duggan, R. S. Matthews.

B. & O. CONSIDERS ELECTRIFICATION

Railroad Has Under Advise-ment Building of Subway Through Smoky City.

TO SPEND SEVERAL MILLIONS

Pennsylvania Intends to Use Electricity From Union Station to Pitsburgh and P. & L. E. Will Do Same Thing in Ohio Valley—Nothing Official Yet

NEW YORK, April 20.—Although as yet in a most primitive stage, it is understood that the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company has under consideration an extensive electrification project at its terminals in Pittsburgh which will involve the expenditure of several millions of dollars. It is expected that the plan as at present outlined, if carried to completion, will necessitate additional financing by the company. Details regarding the matter are not as yet available, but it is suggested that perhaps the new financial bond issue sufficiently large to carry not only the electrification project, but at the same time take care of the $11,000,000 secured gold notes which mature on June 1, 1913.

The proposed improvements at Pittsburgh, it is stated, include the construction of a subway through Pittsburgh from the company's downtown terminal to the residential section at Schenley Park, as well as the electrification of the company's lines from Pittsburgh to McKeesport. It is estimated that some little time may elapse before the work is actually begun, as it is understood that a great deal depends on whether or not other roads entering the Pittsburgh district are willing to make improvements to their lines in the residential section of that city.

The Pennsylvania railroad intends to electrify its road from the Union Station in Pittsburgh to Pitsburgh, while the electric lines along the Ohio river up to the present time, it has been impossible to obtain any official confirmation of the electrification improvement program proposed by the companies mentioned.

Prominent railroad men are inclined to believe that within a reasonable length of time the railroads of a wide area will be compelled to electrify all the important terminals of the country. It is recognized that such a step must be taken in order that the railroads may keep pace with the demands of the times. At the same time the electrification of terminals greatly facilitates the handling of business and ultimately results in a large saving in cost of operation. The New York Central already has its terminal in this city equipped with electrical apparatus. The Southern Pacific is now electrifying its terminals in San Francisco and other companies are said to be contemplating like undertakings.

The Connellsville Construction Company has the contract and will finish in about four or five months. The house, two stories high, will contain two apartments of eight rooms each. MICHIGAN IRON ORE

Reserves Show Total of Nearly 170,000,000 Tons.

"Iron Ore Reserves of Michigan" is the subject of an advance chapter, by C. K. Leith, from Mineral Resources for 1911, United States Geological Survey. The report shows an estimated reserve in the mines of 124,528,164 long tons of high grade ore—that is, what is known under present mining conditions as commercial ore—of 44,523,998 long tons in graded areas or a total reserve of 169,052,162 long tons. The estimate leaves out of consideration high silica, low phosphorus ores of even about 40 per cent grade which have been mined on both the Cooch and the Marquette ranges.

A broad survey of the field, which covers the Gogebic, Iron River, Crystal Falls, Menominee, and Marquette districts, was made by Dr. Leith in the summer of 1911. The probability of extension in every district but the Menominee are so strong that it is estimated that for many years the ratio of reserve to total shipment will be maintained—in other words, that as much ore will be discovered yearly as is mined yearly. In fact, today the reserve probably bears a larger ratio to the total shipment than at any time in the past, and the possibility of developing more ore are so great that 10 years hence there will probably be greater reserve in proportion to shipment than now. The growing tendency of the larger interests to make sure their ore supply for years in advance is leading to the development of increasingly large reserves in proportion to past shipment. Enough facts might be cited in relation to individual mines, explorations, and ranges to show that this forecast of the future is not based on vague surmises. Large extensions, both vertical and areal, are inevitable. Probably not more than 10 per cent of the area of the upper Michigan states of the Crystal Falls, Menominee, Iron River, and adjacent areas has been explored.

The total known area of iron formation is stated to be 23,297 acres, but in addition there are fully 20,000 acres of magnetic hill in which exploration has scarcely more than begun.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by restoring the inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. The inflammation can be taken out and the hearing restored by the use of the Eustachian tube. It is a simple, safe, and effective method, and it is the only one that has been found to be successful in all cases.

Anty Drudge Honored at a Banquet.

Tonight's—"Here's to her who has lightened the work of a million weary women; who has done away with hot fires, rooms full of unhealthy steam, with resulting colds and other ailments; who has made it possible to wash white clothes without making them yellow; colored clothes without fading; woolen and flannel things without shrinking; who has changed wash-day from a horror almost to a pleasure. Here's to Anty Drudge! May she live long to spread the good news of Fels-Naptha soap among all women."

Monday has no terrors for those who wash with Fels-Naptha.

No early rising, no hot fire, no dangerous vessels of scalding water, no unhealthy steam, no hard rubbing, no chapped hands, aching bones and muscles.

Instead—rise at your usual time, soap the wash in cool or lukewarm water, rub the things with Fels-Naptha, roll and then let them soak for half hour; rub lightly, rinse and hang on the line.

You'll find that Fels-Naptha removes the dirt as if by magic.

And the clothes are cleaner and sweeter than if washed in the old, hard work way. The white things are pure white; the colored goods are not faded; flannels and other woollens are not shrunk.

Add to all this the fact that clothes last about twice as long when washed the Fels-Naptha way.

Follow the directions on the red and green wrapper in which Fels-Naptha is sold.

YOUNG WIFE SAVED FROM HOSPITAL

Tells How Sick She Was And What Saved Her From An Operation.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio.—"Three years ago I was married and went to housekeeping. I was not feeling well and could hardly drag myself along. I had such tired feelings, my back ached, my sides ached, I had bladder trouble awfully bad, and I could not eat or sleep. I had headaches, too, and became almost a nervous wreck. My doctor told me to go to a hospital. I did not like that idea very well, so, when I saw your advertisement in a paper, I wrote to you for advice, and have done as you told me. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Laver Pills, and now I have my health.

"If sick and ailing women would only know enough to take your medicine, they would get better."—Mrs. BEN. H. STANBERRY, Route 6, Box 18, Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

MRS. LUCIEN SMITH TELLS HER STORY

Struggled Against Parting From Her Young Husband on Titanic.

HE INVOKED THE MARRIAGE VOW

Finally Prevailed Upon Her to Seek Safety in a Lifeboat—Was Calm and Cool in Hour of Peril—Waved Farewell as Boat Pulled Away.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Mrs. Lucien Smith of Huntington, W. Va., who was saved from the Titanic only because her husband of three months invoked her marriage vow to "obey" in a last effort to induce her to enter a life craft and leave him behind had sufficiently recovered from the shock of the experience last night to tell what will long be remembered as one of the most dramatic narratives of the ocean tragedy.

"I was in my stateroom when the Titanic struck the iceberg," said Mrs. Smith, "and I still wore the evening gown in which I had attended the auction concert two hours before. I soon converted two hours before I thought nothing particularly of the slight shock and the grating sound until a moment later when my husband knelt at the cabin door. He entered smiling and said that there was much ice about and that I had better put on my wraps and come on deck with him to see the spectacle.

"He spoke with such admirable control that I was completely deceived, but I remember that I thought it queer he should insist upon my putting on all my heaviest clothing. Later, of course, I knew that even then my husband had realized that the ship was in grave danger of sinking and that he was merely playing the part to lull me into security and at the same time hurry me to the boats.

"When he had wrapped me, he warmly thanked me, and said: 'Well, sweetheart, we've only been married since February, you know, and still laughingly he added, 'I could not get to have such a new wife so fast.'

"We went out upon the deck from our stateroom and as we went I noticed that there were many men and women running through the lines of cabins, some of them partly dressed and most of them excited. Then I knew that my husband had deceived me to save me from any shock and fright.

"Lucien," I said, "you know that the boat has struck and is sinking."

"O, I don't think she's sinking," he said, still striving to allay my fears, "but it's better that you should be near the lifeboats in case anything does happen."

"He hurried me to the side of the first boat that was already filling and about to be lowered. He urged me to get into it and he pulled away a man who was already clambering in and held him back with one hand while he lifted me with the other over his shoulder.

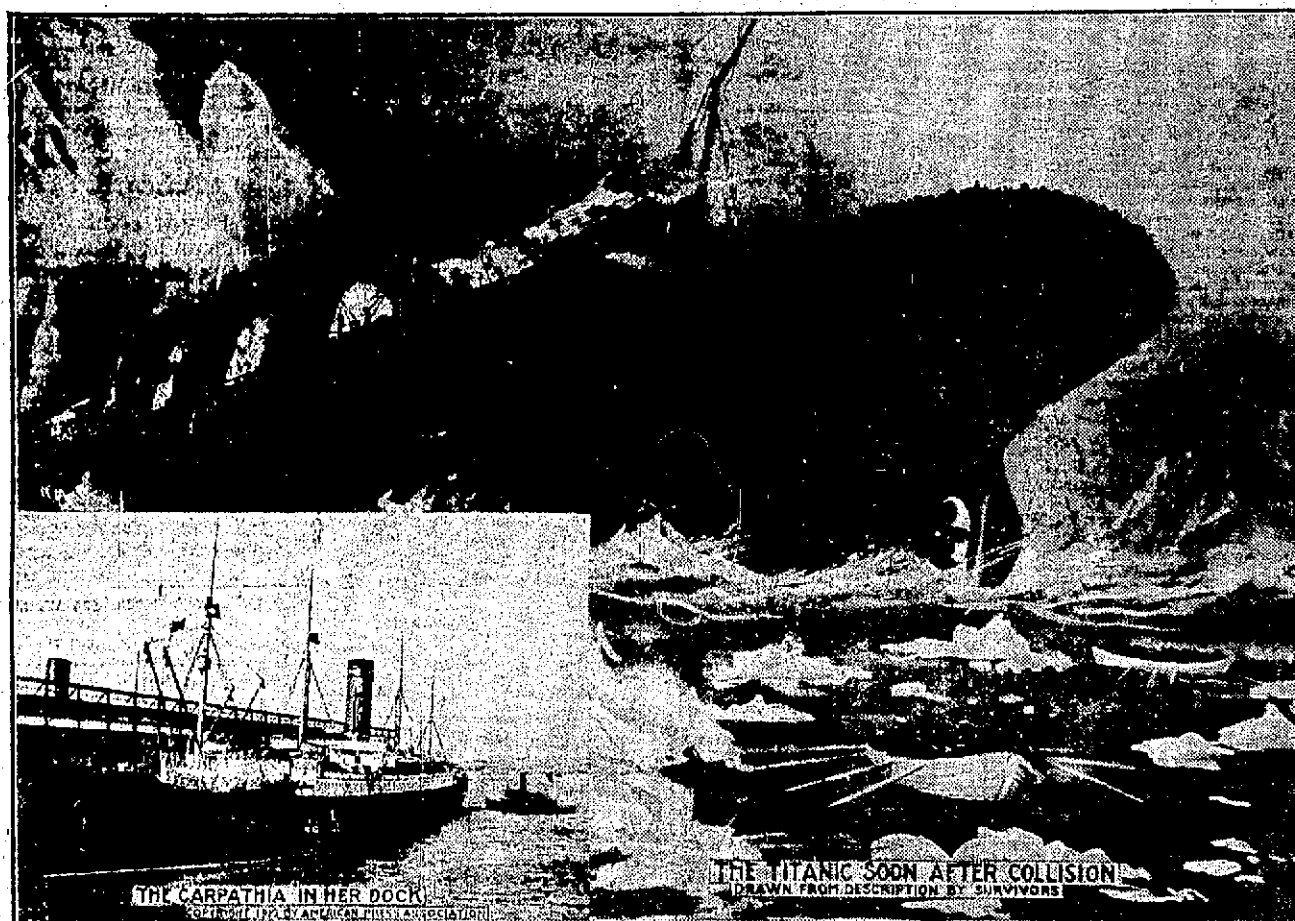

"I struggled," said Mrs. Smith, "because I saw that Lucien meant to remain behind himself. I was still clinging to my husband and the officer who was helping us, when the command came for the boat to go. I flung myself back upon my husband and a moment later the lifeboat was lowered.

"My husband dragged me a little way toward where the second boat was filling with women. He put both hands upon my shoulder and said, 'Sweetheart, I want you to go in the boat. I can't go with you, but you must go. There's small chance that the ship will go down anyway. I'll be safe enough, little girl, and if I find the men, I'll come on one of those other boats in plenty of time. But you've got to go for your father's sake—he'd want to know that you didn't take any risks.'

"But still I wouldn't go," said Mrs. Smith, "and kept my arms about his neck. Then the ship listed—and there came a great slant in the deck toward the starboard and toward the bow. The man who was in charge of sending off the second lifeboat ran from the side of it to where we were standing and tried to separate us.

"Some one shouted that the boat would be lowered in a minute. The seamen caught me up and by husband assisted me toward the boat. I suppose I was insane, but I still fought to stay by Lucien. Then he waved the seamen away and said to me calmly but gravely:

How the Titanic Struck Iceberg That Sent Her To the Bottom and Rescue Ship Carpathia at Her Pier in New York at End of Trip of Mercy

NEW YORK, April 20.—History does not record another trip like that of the Cunard liner Carpathia. She left New York Thursday, April 11, for Mediterranean ports with a large party of tourists and a week later was back in New York with 700 survivors of the most disastrous shipwreck in human experience. As the passengers who had just left the country could not bring any reliable articles, and as those rescued from the Titanic had no personal effects, many being scantily clad, they could not possibly sustain any social life there was not even a cursory examination by the customs officers. All those on board were free to leave the pier without being questioned by Uncle Sam's busy agents, and as soon as she could be loaded and provisioned the Carpathia resumed her interrupted voyage. A few of the tourists decided not to make the trip—some because of illness and others because they wanted their nerves to recover from the shock of the experience they had had. Stories of survivors of the wreck of the Titanic vary considerably in detail, but they agree on the essential points. There seems no doubt that the Titanic, the largest and finest vessel ever built, was proceeding at her usual speed of twenty-two or twenty-three knots an hour at 11:45 Sunday night, when a gigantic iceberg was seen but a few hundred feet ahead. The engines were stopped, and an effort was made by the man at the wheel to turn to one side, but the vessel veered but slightly and within 15 or 20 seconds crashed against the berg. There was not a tremendous shock—indeed, many passengers who were asleep were not awakened. It was a clear, starlight night, and the sea was smooth. Immediately after the collision the Titanic listed heavily, and an hour or so later there was a series of explosions of the boilers, which broke the vessel in two, and she quickly sank. In the meantime the lifeboats, entirely inadequate to handle the passengers and crew, had been filled and lowered. One sank almost immediately because the plug had not been fitted in the holes in the bottom, and two others were sucked under when the Titanic made her plunge to her last resting place. The 700 survivors suffered severely from the cold and several died of exposure before the Carpathia, summoned by wireless, arrived to take them aboard.

Prof. F. D. Wagner, the pastor, announces that the services at the Alverton Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday will comprise preaching at the Wesley Chapel in the forenoon; at Jacobs Creek in the afternoon at 2 o'clock and at Alverton in the evening at 7:30 o'clock.

BRIGGS IN TOWN. Prof. J. S. Briggs, an Orchard Demonstrator in H. A. Surface's section of the State Department of Agriculture, was in town yesterday on his way to the M. M. Byers farm near Mt. Pleasant, where there is an inspection orchard. Prof. Briggs gave his third lecture at Smithton the night previous to a large audience. He is doing a great deal of benefit for the fruit growers and farmers in this section, educating the young people, and a good many older ones, too, on the value of birds on the farm and in the orchard. The lecture is one that every community ought to hear, as it will result in a better conservation of bird life, and consequently more chance for fruit growing.

AN EXTRA WINDOW. The First National Bank has had a new counter and grill placed in the bank and extending out toward the front window on the east side in order to accommodate the patronage of that bank, the new work giving the force more ample working quarters and the customers more windows.

EVANGELIST CORNER. Evangelist Corcoran and his singer are here and want all who can to meet them at the Christian church this evening to get acquainted and plan for the meeting. Meetings for Sunday are as follows: Sunday school at 9:45, Corcoran will preach at 11:00 A. M., and 7:30 P. M. Miss Anderson will sing.

Recently a Big Four car was being backed through it and the high car caught the roof. The whole shed went down in a tangled mass.

The device for bringing fresh air from the outside of the mills into the interior of the mill has proven to be a big assistance in the operation around the mill.

A HAPPY, LAUGHING CHILD IN FEW HOURS

If Cross, Feverish, Tongue
Coated or Sick, Give

"Syrup of Figs."

Mother! Don't scold your cross, peevish child! Look at the tongue! See it is white, yellow and coated! See your child is listless, drooping, not sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, fretful, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomachache, diarrhea, sore throat or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and foul, constipated waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the clogged up system is disengaged and a new, healthy child will gently move on and out of its little waste clogged bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not giving your child anything dangerous or harmful, and it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel purgator and regulator needed—a little given daily will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elix. of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine reliable. Therefore anything else offered.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS MAY HAVE SPECIAL CAR TO TEXAS

National Convention of Order Will Be Held at Fort Worth This Year.

Plans have been quickly formulated for some time among the members of the local order of the Knights of Pythias for getting a special car for the annual convention to be held this year at Fort Worth, Texas. The plan of having a special train from Pittsburgh has already been started in the Smoky City and the Knights from the Coke region are counting on a special car.

Nothing definite in the matter has been done as yet. The convention will not be held until the latter part of August and possibly the first part of September. At present there are about 300 members of the order in Conneltsville and immediate vicinity and it is not unlikely that they will be increased by the time the convention is held.

Four years ago the Knights of Pythias brought the state convention of the order to Conneltsville and handled the affair in great shape.

B. & O. EARNINGS

For March Will Show Increase Over Same Month in 1911.

When the Baltimore & Ohio earnings statement appears for March it will show a five gain in gross and a substantial increase in net over the same month last year. Movement of soft coal was largely responsible for the improvement, of course, but other business along the road's lines picked up enough to bring about substantial earnings improvement had the coal business been only normal.

Estimating roughly on March results and allowing for other income charges and preferred dividends, Baltimore & Ohio's balance for the $151,912,000 common stock in the nine months to March 31 must have been between $6,500,000 and $7,000,000, or say 4 1/2 per cent. The road will have to do but little better than last year to make 5 1/2 per cent additional in the final quarter, so that at least 8 per cent may be expected for the entire year. This would compare with 5.8 per cent in 1911.

The outcome of present year and 1913 means much to the Baltimore & Ohio, as on June 1, 1913, $50,000,000 three-year 4 1/2 per cent notes fall due and refunding will be necessary. While the directors have not yet considered what form the financing will take it is understood that the financing people on the board have had in mind an issue of convertibles, and to make such a security attractive, a fair margin over the 5 per cent dividend is largely desirable.

The GLOW of the RUBIES

I almost laughed at the child-like question—but I didn't! Dash it, no, I wouldn't have done so for the world. Just looked at her seriously and answered her in kind:

"Perfectly sure of it, don't you know?"
And, by Jove, I was! Knew if there had been any change, some newspaper, reading chap at the club would have mentioned it—that was safe; especially one silly ass who was always reading of some jolly comet that was coming. He would know about the night.

"Yes—Oh, yes, there are just as many!" I affirmed positively, and added quickly: "More, you know!" For suddenly I remembered it was leap-year, and I knew there was some jolly rhyme about leap-year gives us one day more—so, of course, there'd be another night!

"You don't know how glad I am to hear you say that," she said musingly. "There are just as many nights, you mean, but the conditions have changed—the moon is changed—is that it?"

I should say the man was changed! "Oh, dash it, yes!" I blurted. By Jove, I hoped there wouldn't be another change.
"You mean"—with a little, challenging, puzzled smile, she leaned forward, her elbow resting upon her knee like a sculptured, Greek pillar; her flower-like curling fingers supporting her chin like a Corinthian capital; the name, you know, the sort of thing the modest, what-you-will-always add to top of their stunning marble columns—you know—well, like that—"you mean we may find nights, not only in the field, but in the shops, upon the streets—even in the slums; or in the hospitals; in the church or upon the bench—that is your idea?"

It wasn't my idea at all—I should say not! Who wanted to spend nights prowling around that way? Why—why, it wasn't respectable, dash it! Besides, that sort of thing—excursing about seeing things—was devilish tiresome. If you asked me, I never did do it, even abroad, where you meet Americans, jolly bored and tired, doing all sorts of new places no one else ever thinks of, don't you know.

And as for a beach! Well, it was like her, her innocence of the world, not to know how downright vulgar that would be. I had seen couples sitting evenings in the park—and I know!

But I answered tactfully:
"I don't mean those places so much, don't you know—I think we can find lots jollier and better nights elsewhere." And I closed my free eye and beamed at her through my glass. "Don't have to go so far, you know; under one's own roof, or—er—some one else's roof, for instance—why not here?" I jerked my head toward the old stone pile behind us.

"Oh!"—her eyebrows lifted at me—"so you've thought of that, too?"

"Poor Fellow!"

she nodded gravely—"you mean in the library there?"

I winked assent.
The library suited me all right! "Just now," she said in an odd, sobered voice, "I looked in as I passed through, and he was looking so crushed, so worn and tired, you know—he had just come from upstairs; and yet he faced me so bravely and smilingly—he shook her head—"poor fellow!"

I stared—puzzled, don't you know. Offhand, dash me if I could see what the judge had to do with our evenings together—why, I had his own approval of my suit. Then I remembered that she, of course, didn't know that—yet. Probably what she had in her dear little mind was that he might be holding the library—and he would, if he continued to think he was busy; for I had heard him say he expected to work all night. But then, there were dozens and dozens of other places we could go—well, I should just say!

I had just bent forward to suggest this to her when I saw she was going to speak. So I waited, smiling at her tenderly.
"And about Arthur—" she began, and I cut myself a painful stab with my nails—right in the palm—"now there is a case where I think you find"—she nodded toward the house again—"where you find one of his superb qualities, the one quality that, of all, I admire in a man the most."

"By Jove!" I said, leaning forward. I wondered what it was—and then, dash it, I asked her.

"Just trust!" she said simply, and her face grew luminous. "Faith, perhaps I should say. My father has it larger than any man I ever knew; it is something that goes out from him with his friendship, with his love, making a dual gift—his voice dropped thoughtfully—"I have studied it in him all my life, and it has always seemed so beautiful to me—so wonderful—the unquestioning peace he has"—her blue eyes widened, shining—"has ever in return for the perfect abiding trust that he gives to the thing he calls his own. I know, for he has made me feel it from the time I was a tiny little girl!" The last word was almost a whisper, so tender, so vibrant with feeling was it—she seemed to have forgotten my existence. "And if ever I find a man—" she breathed.

I coughed slightly and she started, stared at me—and then the dimple deepened in her cheek, lost in a bed of jolly roses. Her laughter pealed forth, birdlike—delicious!

"I beg your pardon!" she said. "But when I think of papa and of how he believes in his children, especially poor little me, I think I must get—her regular, puzzled smile searched my face. "How is it you say it—oh, I know—I think I must be getting dippy!"

And it was the first slang I had heard from those sweet lips since the night she was in my room!

CHAPTER XXVI.

"Because You—Are You."
Poor, brave-hearted girl! How pitiful and heartrending to a keen-eyed man of the world, seemed her poor, little sham about her father's trust in her! For I knew the facts, you know!

And suddenly it came to me that I just couldn't and wouldn't let her go on this way, without the sympathy of the man she loved; without the precious consolation of knowing that he knew! She was being endangered and rough-shouldered and put upon and distrusted and maligned by every one she knew, and she had no one in all the world to turn to but me—and—
Oh, I wanted her to know what I thought, don't you know!

I slipped to the seat beside her. "Er, Miss Billings—" I began, thinking absent-mindedly of what I should say, and forgetting that we were quite alone.

"Miss Billings!" Why do you call me that? Her lovely brow puckered. "I remember, now, that's twice you—" "Frances, then!" I corrected softly. She straightened, her bosom lifting with a quick intake. By Jove, that was what she wanted!

"Oh!" Then she leaned slowly back, looking at me thoughtfully through half-closed eyes, her lips parted in the widest smile.

And I sawed my monotonous tight and let her have a little for me, determined to chirp her up and make her feel our oneness—that sort of thing, you know. "And I succeeded! For of a sudden her head went back and the joyous peal of her canary laugh started off the jolly birds in the trees above us."

"Oh, you—" A star, and then another burst as she bent forward, face buried in her hands. Then it lifted sharply, flame-dyed—her lips tremulous, her eyes shining like sapphires. "Oh!" she gasped, and how I envied the little hand she pressed against her waist! But the windows—dash the windows! "That's—that's it—Frances—just that much! But, do you know, I don't—don't believe you really know my full name! I remember now several—dash it! She bent toward me wistfully, her wide blue eyes challenging my candor. "Honestly, now—do—do you?"

So it was that thought that was tickling her! Well, by Jove, I had her, there, for I had heard the judge mention her name in full. I would surprise her!

"Oh, don't!" I exclaimed, winking as I polished my glass. "Well, how about Frances Loella Billings?" I let her have it slowly, distinctly, and with yet a note of triumph I could not altogether hide. And then remorseful for her amazed expression, I explained frankly: "Got it from your father this morning, don't you know, during our long talk about you in the library."

"Oh—" Then she swallowed and her face fell perfectly blank. By Jove, I could have kicked myself for a jolly ass for bringing it to her so raw! Of course, she would know that if her father talked of her, it would be nothing for me to hear that was true or kind—nothing she could wish might be said to the man she loved.

I hastened to reassure her: "But I don't believe a dashed word of anything he said about you"—I spoke boldly—"and I don't care a jolly hang for what the others said, either,—so there you are!"

"Oh, you don't!" Could tell how I had touched her by her expression, don't you know; and she fell to looking at me the queerest way. "And would you mind telling me who the 'others' are?"

I oiled her gleefully, sympathetically. As if she didn't know already! "Well—oh, dash it, my mind has been filled with—er—just anything!" I began cautiously.

"I know,"—she murmured it as if to herself—"one can see that!" And she bit her lip.
"In the first place, you know"—and there I pulled up. No, dash it, I wasn't going to say a jolly word about your Jack—no, sir! But then, about the other one—well, she was just a tremendous snake in the what's-its-name, and she ought to be exposed.

The Late Col. John Jacob Astor and His Son Vincent, Who Will Share $100,000,000 Estate With His Stepmother, Who is of His Own Age

JOHN JACOB ASTOR AND HIS SON VINCENT
COPYRIGHT BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

NEW YORK, April 20.—Vincent Astor, the 25-year-old son of Colonel John Jacob Astor, who went to his death with the sinking Titanic, was his father's constant companion. Vincent Astor with his father's death becomes the head of the American branch of the Astor family. He was born on November 15, 1891, in the old William Astor mansion in Fifth avenue, this city, where the Waldorf-Astoria now stands.

He was a delicate child, and until he entered Harvard last autumn he spent about 10 months of each year at his father's country house at Ferncliff, on the Hudson, three months at Newport and three months at the town house. He was always somewhat tall, with dark, straight hair and dark blue eyes, resembling his father, especially as to the lower part of the face. He accompanied his father on the trip to the West Indies two years ago in which the Astor yacht Nourmahal was not heard from for several weeks. John Jacob Astor and his son Vincent were believed to have been drowned and their vessel wrecked at that time.

Vincent Astor will share with his step-mother, who is about his own age, the $100,000,000 estate left by his father.

By Jove, she should be! "It's the tramp, you know," I said indignantly.

"The—the what?" Her pretty teeth flashed like the keyboard of a tiny organ—you could even hear a little gargle, musical quiver somewhere behind. And then I remembered that, of course, she wouldn't know whom I meant.

"Oh, your guest, you know—your friend from school," I went on, trying to tread cautiously and yet feeling myself growing red. "Oh, see here now, I don't like to say things, but—"

"Oh, go on!" she smiled, her sweet face shining wistful.

"Well, I mean this—er—Miss Kirkland, came out with us this morning."

Her Absurdity Assured Her, don't you know. I think of her as the tramp—little idea—er—nickname of mine, you know, she's so awful! And I sawed my glass with a chuckle.

For an instant I thought she wouldn't catch it, she stared at me so blankly. Then the joke of it—the jolly aptness, so to speak—got her full and square, and she just lifted a scream, hugging her knee and rocking back and forth, her face suffused, her laughter pealing like a chime of bells.

And I just rocked, too, keeping her company. Really, I don't think I ever laughed so much since some chap plunked down on the hard corner of my new little table. At least I wanted to laugh—in church, you know, and it's so awful how you feel there when something—oh, you know! And if you could have seen that poor fellow's face!

By Jove, how glad I was for her jolly sense of humor that could see the point of things so quickly, and think them clever. Always had so dashed little patience with stupid people, don't you know. And just here another little thing came to me and I let her have it:

"Oh, I say!"—I leaned nearer, chuckling—"your father pretends to think her a most beautiful and winning girl—funny!" And my face stretched itself in such a jolly grin that I could hardly hold my glass.

She bent toward me, smiling adorably. "You mean this—er—Miss Kirkland?"

I nodded chortlingly.
She peered at me through her long what-you-call-'em—oh, such a way!

"But you don't think so, do you?" How sweetly, how fetchingly she said it!

"Me?" I gasped. By Jove, in my horror, I lost my grip upon my jolly grammar. "Oh, I say now! I think that's a fright—regular freak, dash it! I told the judge so!"

"You—you—" "Of course!" And I shrugged disgustedly, making the ugliest grimace I possibly could. "Why, dash it, if I were a woman and had a face like hers, I never would have left China, or England—or wherever her jolly home was no, sir!"

She caught her breath with a little gasp—then she was off again! This time she rested her arms upon the rail behind and buried her head in them, her lovely shoulders jiggling up and down, her sobbing laughter sending her off at last into a spell of coughing.

"Oh!" she breathed, lifting at last her gloriously blushing face and dabbing at it with her ridiculous little handkerchief. "Oh, you'll kill me—I know you will!"

I certainly had stirred her up, and I was delighted. It was funny to think of any one calling the tramp beautiful—it must seem funnier still to her, of course—to Frances, I mean. Why, dash it, she seemed to find a funny side to it that I didn't, don't you know!

"Tell me, now"—she clasped her knees, lifting her lovely face coaxingly—"tell me all that she said about me—everything!"

And I did—every word, by Jove! And no one could look into that sweet, ingenuous face as I proceeded, and doubt that the slanders were new to her. Never a jolly one touched her—only you could see their absurdity amused her. Several times I had to pause as she bent under a gale of laughter.

Only once was she brought up short.

"Oh!" she uttered faintly, as I came to the information about her being half-fellow-well-met with the footmen and her drinking and carousing with them and other men-servants until three in the morning. "I realized that it wasn't the matter of her drinking that fazed her and drew from her little gasps as I came to this—know that didn't bother her, don't you know, for I knew she did drink—could drink, I mean to say; for I had not forgotten the two full, whiskey glasses of high-proof Scotch she had tossed off that night in my rooms. Why, no, dash it, she was able to drink—it went in the family! I could never forget with what pride she had told me of putting her brother Jack under the table two nights running. That was all right—it was the other part of the tramp's scandal that brought her up, standing, so to speak."

For now she really looked embarrassed, despite another lapse to laughter. Her face and neck were dyed a lovely crimson.

"Oh, dear!" she said finally, and she wiped her eyes. "What you must think of me!"—and she looked away, a pretty frown contracting her face;

then the jolly dimple deepened once again and she choked into her handkerchief. "Oh, dear!" she repeated, biting her lip to hold her quivering mouth corners. "Oh, it's a shame," I heard her mutter; "I mustn't let him—let's see—" She wheeled upon me, her lips tightened. "Oh!" she ejaculated sharply, almost reluctantly, and her foot struck smartly on the boards. "I wonder how much you think—think—"

"Think lots," I said simply, watching her little toe as it tapped.

"Well, I should think as much!" And this time her laugh was short—oddly constrained. She looked away off down the slope to the river. "Oh! This time it was a tiny gasp as of dismay. And the toe tapped like an electric what's-its-name."

"Yes," I said, watching it musingly. "I suppose it's because you're the only girl, don't you know, that I ever did think of before—oh, ever at all, dash it!"

The toe stopped. I could feel her looking at me sideways, but I did not glance up, that I remember; was looking down, trying to get hold of a dashed idea I wanted to express.

"Don't know," I continued, boring away at her toe, yet hardly seeing it, "but suppose that's the reason I know all the time she was lying; but still, somehow, that doesn't seem to be the real reason I know. I think the real reason I know it couldn't be and wasn't true was—I sighed heavily—"oh, dash it, it's so hard to get hold of the jolly thing!"

And there was a pause.

"The real reason?" her voice coaxed gently.

"Was because—" Then she moved the toe and it put me out—"I think just because—oh, yes, I know now!" And I looked up eagerly. "Just because I knew that you—er—you!" I finished, blushing.

MANAGER WILSON'S IDEA IS EVIDENTLY A GOOD ONE

Other Clubs in O. & P. are falling into line at Coker suggestion as to players.

Manager W. C. Wilson's suggestion in regard to the number of players to be carried by each club is bearing fruit and the other club owners are rapidly falling into line with the Coker idea. Some time ago Connellsville through Manager Wilson suggested that with the salary limit at $1,200 it would be better to allow each club to carry as many players as they wanted to instead of holding them down to the league rule which only allows 12 men.

An East Liverpool writer, however, takes a stab at the idea saying that it would mean that the players would necessarily be of an inferior caliber if more than 12 were carried. This number also includes the services of a playing manager.

BASEBALL HUMMING OVER AT QUAKERTOWN

Manager Hugh Shannon Has Things Well Lined Up and Ready for Start of Season.

Over in Salem Manager Hugh Shannon is making things hum in a baseball way. He had all his plans well in shape now and will start the season well prepared. The red-headed manager has a multitude of players signed up and has already started the tin can medley. Ford Boehm, a Bronx marvel who was a candidate for second base has been cut off the list and others are to follow.

James Mack who will direct the team play had his first work at Salem on other day but the cold weather was too much for the veteran and after a few minutes he decided to take things easy. Clarence Wagner a short stop last year in the Canadian league is the latest Quaker acquisition.

COKERS' CONTRACTS HELD UP BECAUSE OF NO AFFIDAVIT

Three Players Yet to Be Heard From. Jerry Collins is in Good Condition.

Because of not having the affidavits taken properly the contracts of 10 Coker candidates have been held up and were not sent to President G. Y. Travis. Thirteen were sent and these will probably be approved within a few days. According to the affidavits made in the league this year a conclusive statement that the player is not receiving any money outside of his salary for playing is necessary. There will be 26 contracts altogether. Remaining and those of Pitcher Rupp, Hauser and Walsh. Jerry Collins writes from Newport News that he is working out every day and that he is in good condition. He played with Oshesh last year.

O. & P. Notes.
Willis Humphries has signed a Wheeling contract.

Marks, an all round athletic star from Grove City College, is Manager Pulger's latest acquisition at Sharon. He will be used behind the bat. Marks is a big fellow and has been responsible for many of Grove City's victories on the gridiron in years past.

Shortstop Gross the man recommended by Frank Haller has returned his signed contract to Manager Wilson. He rejected the first contract asking for more money and Wilson decided to grant the increase. Gross is a star and is calculated to add considerable strength to the Cokers.

Pete Porter last year with New Castle in the O. & P. league is being urged by his friends to take a berth again this year. Porter is an attorney and when Billy Sunday visited New Castle last year aided in the meetings. He has had several good offers from the Tri-State league.

BEST EQUIPPED ELECTRO-MEDICAL OFFICES IN STATE
I give you immediate benefits, cure you at one-half the expense of other specialists, and in one-half the time, or it costs you nothing for service. I am the outstanding and reliable specialist. I am proving to afflicted men that I am a diseased cured patient every day who had been unsuccessfully treated for so long that they thought they could not be cured. My treatment is certain. I want men seeking treatment from those who have been under the care of other specialists for a long time without being cured to come to me and let me show them, as I have shown so many others, how "DIFFICULT" any treatment is. I will cure you if curable. I invite you to come to my offices for free consultation and examination. I have no cheap, unscrupulous assistants in my office. I want a chance to prove I can cure all afflicted, skeptical men who may hesitate to come to me because they have been humiliated by dishonest, unethical doctors. I treat ALL GUARANTEED Diseases successfully. Men's Diseases Cured or No Pay for Service. Examination by treatment is "DIFFICULT" and COSTS YOU NOTHING unless you are willing, glad and entitled to pay me. I advertise to "One Treatment" or "Day Cure" to get you to my office, but TREATMENT Cures More Than Any Other. Appointments can be made.
